

International Fellowships

Socialdata is a world leading research and marketing institute in the sustainability field. Our work includes behaviour research, modelling and analysis; and we are leading the world in voluntary behaviour change projects. Currently we are working on three continents, in seven countries with hundreds of projects.

We are planning to build on this work and give people in Europe the opportunity to grow and progress with us.

There is a huge global future market in behaviour change in sustainability for transport, water, energy, waste, physical activity, health etc., and a great opportunity for employment.

We are offering 18-months Fellowships for people with knowledge in (social) research, behaviour change and IT, including organisation / administration / management.

We offer:

- the most modern survey techniques for behaviour
- the leading behaviour change programmes
- applications of this in other sustainability areas

This includes:

- development of professional skills closest to a world standard
- possibility to use and improve language skills
- significant improvement of communication and social skills

Opportunities:

- training in Australia, Austria, Germany / Nuremberg, the Netherlands and United Kingdom
- paid travel and accommodation in other countries (partial payment of accommodation costs in Munich)
- exciting job prospects with the unique opportunity to acquire skills for a global market

Remuneration:

900 € per month for the first six months, 1,200 € per month for the next six months, and 1,500 € for the final six months; with 10 days (paid) holidays in each period. This will lead to opportunities for a fairly senior position in the company, and a salary commensurate with skills attained on completion of the Fellowship.

Please e-mail your curriculum vitae with a statement expressing why you are interested in this Fellowship, and demonstrating your experience and interest to:
